WELCOME to the U of A

The University of Arizona is not only one of the outstanding institutions of higher education in the West, it is also located in one of the most beautiful settings.

The campus, in Southern Arizona's ideally mild climate, is characterized by its wide, grassy malls, palm trees, cacti and a variety of plants from many areas of the world.

The landscape complements the red brick buildings at the University which feature a broad range of architecture — all of this with the nearby Catalina Mountains in the background and warm sunny weather about 300 days a year.

The University, founded in 1885, is the land-grant institution of the state. The bachelor's degree is offered in 127 fields of study, the master's degree in 117 and the doctor's degree in 78. The University is divided into 14 colleges, three schools, 81 departments and 29 divisions of research and special services.

Among the curriculums offered at Arizona are the College of Law, the College of Education, the College of Liberal Arts, and the newest, the College of Medicine, based in a 300-bed teaching hospital which opened in 1971.

University research is conducted at Kitt Peak Observatory southwest of Tucson, at posts in Mexico, in the Hawaiian Islands, in nearby houses which operate on solar energy and at experimental farms throughout the state.

More than 30,000 students from all over the world have been drawn to the University of Arizona for the 1976 fall semester.

ARIZONA STADIUM

The University of Arizona football team will be playing in the largest stadium in the Western Athletic Conference this season. Construction has been completed on a 17,000-seat, two-tier addition to the east side of the facility, raising the capacity to 57,000.

All the new seats on both tiers are curved toward the center of the field. There are 32 rows of seats on each of the tiers.

Now, about 41,000 seats in Arizona Stadium are on the sidelines.

Seating provisions have been made on the first level for handicapped persons and those confined to wheelchairs.

Also included in the project is the installation of a mercury haloid lighting system which will greatly aid nighttime color telecasts and photography.

Originally, Arizona Stadium seated 7,000 persons. Ground was broken in December, 1928, with the Wildcats playing and winning (35-0 vs. California Tech) their first game Oct. 12, 1929. The first seats were all on the west side between the end zones.

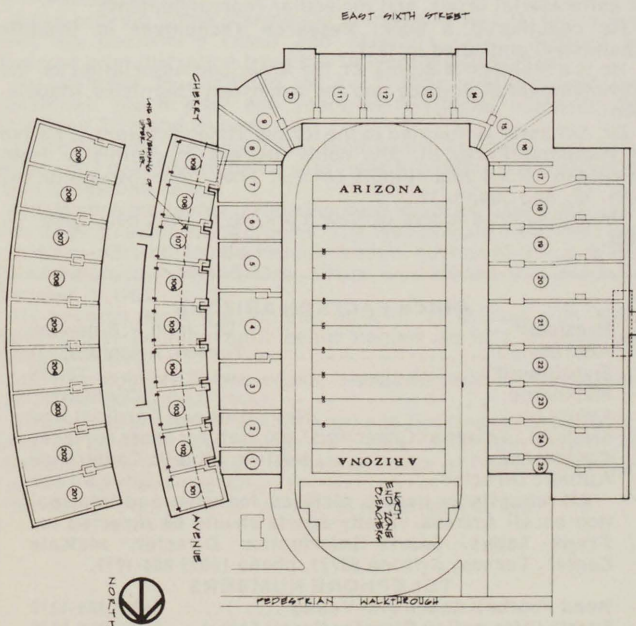

In 1938, an additional 3,000 seats were added between the 25-yard lines on the east side, boosting capacity to 10,000. Nine years later, seats on the east side were extended to the end zones, increasing seating by 4,000. The expansion included the building of East Stadium Dormitory.

The horseshoe at the south end of the stadium was completed in 1950, giving the facility a total of 22,671 seats.

That's the way it stayed until 1965 when expansion on the west side provided 10,600 new seats, along with the 80-foot press box and new lights. Including bleachers which were installed in the end zones, 40,000 seats were available prior to the latest expansion project.

A scoreboard with an electronic message board was installed in the north end zone in 1972 along with two smaller scoreboards in the southeast and southwest ends of the stadium.

Now, after six phases of construction, Arizona Stadium is the showcase of the Western Athletic Conference.

DR. JOHN P. SCHAEFER

President, University of Arizona

It is essential that every successful intercollegiate athletic program have at the top an athletic-minded college president. At the University of Arizona, Dr. John P. Schaefer is just that.

Dr. Schaefer, the 17th president at the University, has spearheaded the revitalization of the Arizona athletic program the past four years.

It was Dr. Schaefer who appointed Dave Strack athletic director in 1972, the move that turned Arizona's sagging intercollegiate athletic program around. Suddenly, Wildcat teams gained national recognition and began contending for Western Athletic Conference titles in most sports.

Perhaps Dr. Schaefer's interest in athletics stems from his own athletic career. Dr. Schaefer lettered in track and cross-country and played basketball at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. He earned a B.S. in chemistry with a minor in mathematics at Brooklyn in 1955 before moving on to the University of Illinois where he earned his Ph.D. in chemistry in 1958.

He was awarded a National Science Foundation fellowship for postdoctoral study to the California Institute of Technology in 1958.

After doing research at CIT, Dr. Schaefer received an assistant professorship to the University of California in Berkeley in 1959-60.

A year later, he came to the University of Arizona as an assistant professor in chemistry. He became head of the chemistry department in 1968.

He was promoted to dean of the College of Liberal Arts in 1970, a position he held until he was appointed President of the University on July 1, 1971.

While head of the chemistry department, Dr. Schaefer traveled to England, Ireland, Venezuela and the West Indies.

Dr. Schaefer's academic interests are primarily in chemistry and the humanities. He is an organic chemistry specialist.

His research includes applications of x-ray crystallography, techniques in determining the structure of compounds, synthesis of antimalarial drugs, and molecular rearrangements.

He coauthored a book, Research Techniques in Organic Chemistry, published in 1971.

He is a member of Sigma Xi, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Chemistry Association.

Dr. Schaefer is married to the former Helen Schwarz, a native of Highland Park, Ill. She holds degrees in chemistry from Michigan (B.S.) and Illinois (M.S.). They have two children: Ann, 15; and Susan, 12.

Dr. Schaefer, a native of New York, N.Y., was born Sept. 17, 1934.

DAVE STRACK

Director of Athletics

It might be overstating the case to call David H. Strack a miracle worker, but since his appointment as athletic director at Arizona, the athletic teams have enjoyed unparalleled success.

Four years ago Strack came to Arizona at a time when both major sports, basketball and football, were notorious losers. Attendance and interest in athletics were sagging, but Strack quickly remedied the problem by hiring Jim Young as football coach and Fred Snowden as basketball coach.

Young's teams have responded by capturing a share of the Western Athletic Conference championship once and finishing runnerup twice. Attendance has soared at Wildcat football games, forcing the stadium addition which brought capacity to 57,000 for this season. Arizona has been in the top 20 in both wire service polls under Young.

Snowden has also been highly successful. His cagers won the first WAC basketball crown in school history in 1976 and appeared on national television in the NCAA West Regional finals against UCLA. They also appeared on national television in 1975 in the finals of the National Commissioners Invitational Tournament. Besides the league championship this year, Snowden's teams have twice tied for second in the WAC.

Under the directorship of Strack, Arizona's athletic facilities have become first class. Besides the football stadium addition, 14,438-seat McKale Memorial Center has been constructed for basketball, 7,000-seat Wildcat Field has been built for baseball, a 50-meter by 25-yard swimming pool with diving tank and new lighted championship quality tennis courts have been added.

Arizona played host to the 1976 NCAA Wrestling Championships, the 1974 NCAA West Regional Basketball Championships and the 1975 WAC Swimming and Diving Championships.

The Arizona baseball team won the 1976 NCAA College World Series at Omaha Nebraska. Arizona's team led the nation in attendance during 1976 by attracting 85,790 fans for 36 regular season home playing dates.

Strack was a star basketball player at Shortridge High School in Indianapolis, Ind.

After serving in the Marine Corps in World War II, he earned both his Bachelor's (1945) and Master's (1946) degrees in business administration from the University of Michigan.

He returned to Michigan for an 11-year stint as assistant basketball coach after two years as territorial manager for Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

In 1959 Strack became basketball coach at Idaho, but once again returned to Michigan a year later to assume the position of head basketball coach.

His Wolverine teams, featuring such stars as Cazzie Russell, won three straight Big 10 crowns. The 1964-65 team was rated No. 1 in the country during the regular season, but lost to UCLA in the NCAA finals in Portland, Ore. Strack was named UPI coach of the year in 1965.

He became associate athletic director at Michigan in 1968, holding that position until being named athletic director at Arizona in 1972.

He has published two books, Fundamentals of Basketball (1963) and Basketball (1967).

Strack is married (wife Ruth Ann) and has five children: Mrs. Sally McElroy of Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Julie Ann DeWitt of Madison, Wisc.; David, 24, basketball coach at Cochise College; Lucy, 22, of Eloy; and Amy, 17.

Strack was born March 2, 1923, in Indianapolis, Ind.

Jim Young
Head Coach

Full Name: James C. Young
Joined Arizona Staff: Dec. 11, 1972
Born: April 21, 1935, Van Wert, Ohio
College: B.S. Bowling Green, 1957
M.S. Bowling Green, 1958

Three years ago not many people would have believed that by 1976 the University of Arizona football team would have established itself solidly in the nation's top 20, would be an annual challenger for the Western Athletic Conference championship and would be playing to record crowds both at home and on the road.

Since the arrival of head coach Jim Young, though, those things have come to pass. Young has never been associated with a losing team either as a player or as a coach.

Young has a three-year record of 26-7 at Arizona, including a WAC co-championship (1973) and two second place finishes (1974 and 1975). He is the only Arizona coach in the last decade to beat arch-rival Arizona State.

His record as a winner goes back to his high school days. After earning all-state honors as a fullback at Van Wert (Ohio) High, he attended Ohio State University and played on the 1954 national championship team. The following year he transferred to Bowling Green State University with his backfield coach Doyt Perry. It was during his career at Bowling Green that Young met Bo Schembechler, then line coach for the Falcons.

Young's first job was as wrestling, track and assistant football coach at Findlay (Ohio) College. Even though he had no experience in wrestling, his team was 11-0. His track team was 8-2 and won a conference championship.

He returned to Bowling Green as wrestling coach and freshman football coach. His football team had a winning season and his wrestling team won the Mid-America Conference championship.

Young then became football coach at Lima (Ohio) Shawnee High School where his teams posted a 28-10-2 record and won two league titles in four years. At one point, his teams won 23 straight games. His 1963 team averaged 44.3 points per game.

Schembechler, who in the meantime had become head coach at Miami of Ohio, asked Young to join him as an assistant. The two were associated in coaching for the next nine years.

During that time, Schembechler-Young-coached teams were 73-19-1 for a .784 winning percentage. Young served in almost every assistant coach capacity — freshman, defensive secondary, offensive line, offensive backfield, offensive coordinator and defensive coordinator.

When the two moved on to the University of Michigan, Young was defensive coordinator for five years and his defenders were second nationally in total defense in 1971, first in the nation against the score, fifth nationally in pass defense and second nationally overall in 1972.

When Schembechler was hospitalized with a mild heart attack in Pasadena, Calif., Young assumed head coaching responsibilities for the Wolverines in the 1970 Rose Bowl Game.

While the Schembechler-Young teams were winning at a .784 clip, Arizona football teams were posting a 39-52-2 mark, a paltry .429 percentage.

In 1973, Arizona athletic director Dave Strack, who knew Young from Strack's days as associate athletic director at Michigan, summoned Young to turn the Wildcat football program around.

In his first year, Young did just that. Picked to finish fourth in the WAC in preseason polls, Arizona tied Arizona State for the conference championship. It was Arizona's best performance ever in the WAC, and the 8-3 overall record tied the school record for victories in a season.

In recognition of that accomplishment, Young was selected WAC Coach of the Year by the member schools, UPI WAC Coach of the Year, WAC Sportswriters Coach of the Year and District 7 Coach of the Year by the American Football Coaches Association.

As if to prove the first year accomplishment was no fluke, Young's teams have since produced back-to-back 9-2 seasons and the school record for victories in a season. Further, the three-year record of 26-7 is the most wins in a three-year period by an Arizona team. Young's .787 winning percentage is tops among all Arizona coaches for that length of time and is one of the best marks in the nation for the last three years.

Under Young's guidance, Arizona has been ranked in the nation's top 20 for the past three years (13th UPI and 15th AP in 1976).

Attendance has soared and as a result a 17,000-seat stadium addition has been built, bringing the capacity in Arizona Stadium to 57,000, the largest in the Western Athletic Conference.

Young relates well to his players, taking a youthful, energetic approach to the game. Young himself admits that part of his success comes from his taking practical psychology and management courses.

His coaching philosophy is based on execution of basic fundamentals, a sound defense, a diversified offense and a good kicking game.

For example, the 1975 offense average 30 points per game, was ranked fifth nationally in total offense yet had the fewest turnovers in the nation (9). The Wildcats were among the national leaders in net punting yards (37.4).

Since Young's arrival, practically every school record has been broken or challenged.

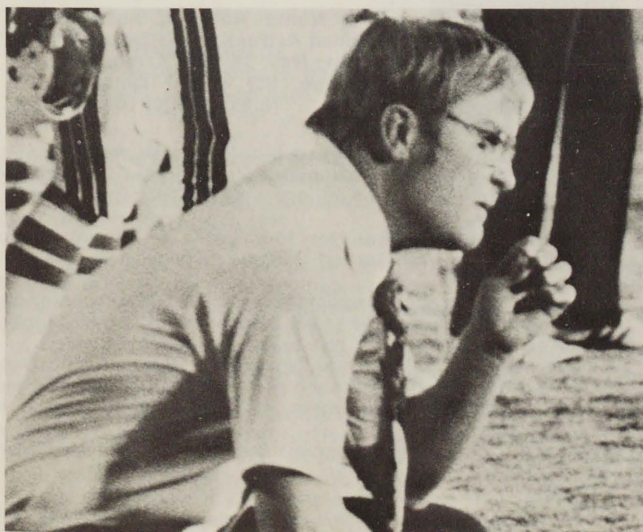

He was on the coaching staff of the East-West Shrine Game and the inaugural Japan Bowl in Tokyo last January.

Perhaps the greatest tribute to his program is the fact that other universities have drawn from his staff of coaches. Six Arizona graduate assistants have been elevated to full-time college assistants. Young's assistant head coach and defensive coordinator for the past three years, Larry Smith, became head coach at Tulane University last December.

Young and his wife (Jane) grew up 10 miles from each other in Van Wert, Ohio, but did not meet until they were in college.

The Youngs have five children: Laura, 17; Elaine, 15; Joan 14; Colleen, 10 and James Jr., 2.

John Mackovic
Assistant Head Coach and Offensive
Coordinator Fourth Year

Full Name: John Mackovic
Joined Arizona Staff: December, 1972
Born: Oct. 1, 1943, Barberton, Ohio
College: B.A. Wake Forest, 1965
M.Ed. Miami [Ohio], 1966

It comes as no surprise that John Mackovic was promoted to the position of Assistant Head Coach when it opened last winter. Mackovic has steadily progressed in the Arizona coaching ranks since joining the staff four years ago when Head Coach Jim Young was hired.

Mackovic will continue as offensive coordinator, charged with the responsibility of bringing together the various components of Arizona's offense.

It was at Miami (Ohio) that Mackovic and Young were first associated in coaching. Young was an assistant coach under Bo Schembechler and Mackovic joined the staff as a graduate assistant.

From Miami, Mackovic went on to Barberton (Ohio) High School as assistant football coach for two years. He moved on to Army as an assistant coach, then on to San Jose as offensive coordinator for two years before joining the Arizona staff.

Mackovic is a natural to coach the offense. In his college days as quarterback at Wake Forest, he was the total offense leader in the Atlantic Coast Conference in 1965, earning second team all-ACC and being named team most valuable player.

He received the President's Trophy as the outstanding senior ROTC cadet while at Wake Forest.

He is married (wife Arlene) and has a daughter, Aimee Elizabeth, 1.

ARIZONA AGAINST

ARIZONA

The Western Athletic Conference

Five of seven league games are in Arizona Stadium, a plus for the Wildcats as Coach Jim Young seeks that elusive undisputed WAC crown. Young's Wildcats have established themselves as a legitimate grid power in the league. Under Young, Arizona has posted a 17-4 mark in three years of conference games, a record matched only by Arizona State which is also 17-4 under Coach Frank Kush for the past three seasons. Looking at the overall rivalries with conference teams, only Utah holds an advantage over the Cats with 16 wins, 10 losses and two ties; however, Arizona has won the last three games. UA's WAC games on the road this year are at Utah on Oct. 30 and at New Mexico on Nov. 20. Three of Arizona's four November games are at home.

Pacific Eight Conference

Last time Arizona played a PAC-8 team was UCLA in 1972 in the Los Angeles Coliseum as the Bruins won a wild one, 42-31. Arizona returns to the Coliseum on Sept. 18 to battle UCLA again. This will be the first time Coach Young has guided his Wildcats against a PAC-8 club and the Cats should be ready as they have not whipped UCLA in four tries. Arizona stands 7-12-1 against the PAC-8.

Southeastern Conference

A grand name in football, Auburn, has the honor of facing Arizona on Sept. 11 in its newly enlarged stadium for the 1976 home opener. Arizona and Southeastern Conference football teams are strangers for all practical purposes. The only SEC team the Wildcats ever have played is Auburn and that was in the 1968 Sun Bowl when the Plainsmen won, 34-10. Arizona will play a return engagement at Auburn in the 1977 opener on Sept. 10.

Southwestern Conference

Arizona continues its long rivalry with Texas Tech by playing in Lubbock on Oct. 23. The Wildcats finally whipped the Red Raiders again last year in one of the most exciting games ever played in Arizona Stadium. Arizona has won only one game in Lubbock and that was 7-6 in 1935. Tech holds a wide edge over Arizona 22-3-1. Arizona never has played Arkansas, Baylor and Texas Christian of the SWC.

The Big Ten

Coach Jim Young will attempt to keep his record unblemished against Big Ten teams when Arizona invades Northwestern on Oct. 2. Under Young, Arizona has whipped Indiana twice, Iowa and Northwestern. Overall UA stands 6-9 against Big 10 teams. Arizona never has played three Big 10 teams — Illinois, Purdue and Wisconsin.

KIT CARSON RIFLE TROPHY

Each year Arizona and its traditional football rival New Mexico battle for an old Springfield rifle known as the Kit Carson Trophy. The trophy originated in 1938 when the late J.F. McKale offered the rifle, which he had obtained years earlier in a trade with an Indian (rumored to be Geronimo), to Roy Johnson. The trophy was named in honor of the great work done in New Mexico and Arizona by the scout Kit Carson. In each of the 29 games since its inception the winning team has engraved its name and the score of the game on the rifle and retained possession of it until forced to give it up by losing the traditional game. Arizona has won custody of the Kit Carson Trophy 18 times while New Mexico has won it 11 times. New Mexico now has the rifle as a result of its 44-34 victory in Tucson last year.

"The Wildcats"

In 1914 a student correspondent for the Los Angeles Times, covering the Arizona - Occidental football game on the Occidental campus, penned the following: "The Arizona men showed the fight of wildcats..."

Back in Tucson, when the student body read the dispatch of the game, a resolution was immediately drawn up, and passed, that hence-force Arizona athletic teams will be called "The Wildcats."

The writer, the late Bill Henry, was then a senior at Occidental and grew in name as did the Wildcats. He later became a renowned columnist for the Los Angeles Times, a war correspondent, and a newsanalyst for NBC. Henry was honored as "the father of the Arizona Wildcats" at the 50th Homecoming in 1964 when Arizona played Idaho.

1975 WAC ATTENDANCE

It was quite a year attendance-wise in the 1975 WAC when you consider that three football teams won but four games in 33 tries. The final figure of 1,139,320 represents an average of 26,496 for 43 home dates, down just 36 fans a game from the 1974 record-setting average of 26,532. This makes the 1975 season the second best in WAC annals and only the second time in 14 years of WAC football the average has topped 26,000 fans. The biggest increase over 1974 was noted at Wyoming where attendance climbed 2,998 on an average over a year ago. The complete figures:

School	G	Attendance	1975 Avg.	1974 Avg.	Change
ARIZONA	5	191,180	38,236	36,574	+1,662
Arizona State	7	329,644	47,092	47,722	- 630

FIESTA BOWL

For the sixth straight year Arizona will be one of the eight teams of the Western Athletic Conference vying for a berth in the Fiesta Bowl, which annually brings in the WAC champ to meet an invited collegiate football power.

And as the Western Athletic Conference and its teams have continued to gain national prominence during the last few years, so has the bowl which was founded in 1971.

"The marriage of the Western Athletic Conference and the Fiesta Bowl has been a happy one," said WAC Commissioner Stan Bates. "Not only is the Fiesta assured a conference champion team for its annual game, but the WAC is guaranteed an enormous amount of national prestige and publicity by its participation.

"Last year's Fiesta Bowl was a great victory for the conference — it was the biggest thing ever to happen to WAC football. It established our Fiesta Bowl as one of the top attractions in the country and certainly placed the conference up with the other major conferences."

For years collegiate athletics have annually recognized the Rose, Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls as the nation's "Big Four" and for years the nation's best collegiate football power have met in these post-season classics to determine top national ranking.

During 195 the Western Athletic Conference Bowl Game entered that elite group by pitting two teams with a combined 21-1 record (Nebraska and Arizona State), the best mark by any bowl last year, and staged the game which decided the No. 2 and No. 9 ranked teams in the country.

The Fiesta Bowl came of age in 1975 when the Bowl staged what many called the top bowl attraction in the country. Instead of the usual "Big Four," the New York Times listed the country's Big Five games, adding the Fiesta encounter to the already prestigious quartet.

"The Fiesta Bowl pulled a coup," Herschel Nissenson told the nation in an Associated Press story.

Sports Illustrated wrote prior to the contest: "In only its fifth year, the Fiesta Bowl has the trappings of a national championship game the grandbaby of all bowl games."

And the NCAA's statistical service newsletter pointed out that the Fiesta Bowl became the first bowl outside of the Big Four to match two major collegiate teams with only one defeat between them.

The Fiesta Bowl has strong impetus for continuing its "Big Five" status:

- As America's fastest growing conference and already most exciting, the Western Athletic Conference sends its conference champion to the bowl annually, insuring a top football power for the Fiesta.

- The Bowl's hospitality for the teams and fans continues to attract top flight intersectional competition for the WAC champ. "We have not had a finer bowl trip and the warmth and hospitality of the Fiesta Bowl people and the citizens of your area was tremendous," wrote Nebraska Sports Information Director Don Bryant after the Cornhusker visit in 1975.

- Payoff figures continue to rise. Each of the competing teams received $168,000 after the first Fiesta in 1971. That has grown each year to the $210,000 figure of last year. In 1976 the bowl promises its biggest jump yet in payoff money.

- While the football game has been busy in just five short years becoming one of the nation's top post-season classics, the entire Fiesta celebration also is becoming one of the nation's best festivals. The month-long December festival now boasts 25 events seen by 210,000 onlookers in 1975, including 122,000 who saw the Fiesta Parade.

- The game is the Rocky Mountain area's richest sporting event. Competing teams have received almost $1.9 million in three years from game revenues. Meanwhile, 25,000 out-of-state fans have flocked to Arizona the last two years, generating an estimated $11.25 million in revenue.

- It is also the most-attended event in the Rocky Mountain area. The Fiesta and the Rose are the only bowls to stage sellouts for the past five years.
